

Digging Fun with OPAL

It has been another exciting week of OPAL play! The children have been thoroughly enjoying the newest addition to our playground — the sandpit! We've had digging, burying each other and some fantastic sandcastle building.

Our digging pit has been a huge success over the past few weeks and quite a few of our children are showing a real interest in archaeology. We have found lots of intriguing items, including a 10p coin from 1992 and most recently, a bone! After thorough investigation and receiving advice, we have discovered it is a hip bone from a fox which has really excited our diggers. Knowing the history of our local area, who knows what else we may find, so keep on digging!

Our "Amazing play" this week goes to the group of children who made a fantastic obstacle course out of the den building items. Lots of fun was had and I really enjoyed watching them complete their course.
